

aggressive and mad, or happy. Glenola said, "I also used to be a boozer, but I seen the light and quit." Except for an occasional Hamms beer with her Camel cigarettes.

Glenola said "I spent my entire life from age 9 working and the past 36 years in business for myself." She owned an apartment house on Main Street with a number of small apartments which she rented out. There were also apartments in the back, kind of like a motel. In later years, she moved out, leaving Axel and living with her Uncle Joe Scott. Glenola died August 28, 1983 and Axel died about three months later on November 19, 1983.
