Have We Got News for You!

News. When we hear it we think of many things. Most of us think of President Reagan, Libya, the superpowers, Larry Bird and many other newsworthy people and events. High school students are no exception. Beyond this, however, high schoolers are concerned about news on a much more local scale.

For those who participate in extra-curricular activities, these activities are often the first thing talked about in the morning. Last night's ballgame, a starting position on a team, the lead in the musical, marching in the homecoming parade, and the candidates for royalty are all subjects which are almost always inquired about when two or more teenagers get together.

To many students, questions about classes and tests must be answered before they can head home with a stack of books and homework. From discussing an assignment to finding out a test grade, you can always locate a group of students who are discussing their classes. Grades and homework. . . for some, nothing takes up more of their time.

"Did you hear the news? Guess who's going to prom!" Completing high school is largely a social task. And no other news is more exciting and, to those involved at least, no news is more important. Whether it is wearing glasses for the first time, a new boyfriend, a new car, losing a best friend, or being suspended from school, it often is the most important thing in the world.

It is hard to concise a whole school year into 80 pages. There have been so many events and special memories. Although everyone will use the knowledge learned and value the relationships developed quite differently, all will try to remember their high school years as much as possible. Not all of the news which made up the 1985-86 school year is included in this book. This would have been impossible even if it would have been the desired result. Rather, the intention is to trigger memories. The pictures and information on the following pages covers a wide variety of areas. Take yourself back to the 1985-86 school year and turn the pages because, Boy! Have We Got News for You!

Bulldog pride shows in the faces of the Hurley High cheering section.

Jodi points out Mark's errors while he grins at the camera. He doesn't seem to be paying much attention to her, does he?!

The junior girls beg Mr. Winegar to postpone their advanced biology test for another day.

Mr. Wolford is not quite as different as his predecessor; or is he?!

People In The News

Shop teacher Tom Christiansen doesn't think much of Mike DeNeui's homemade rabbit cage.

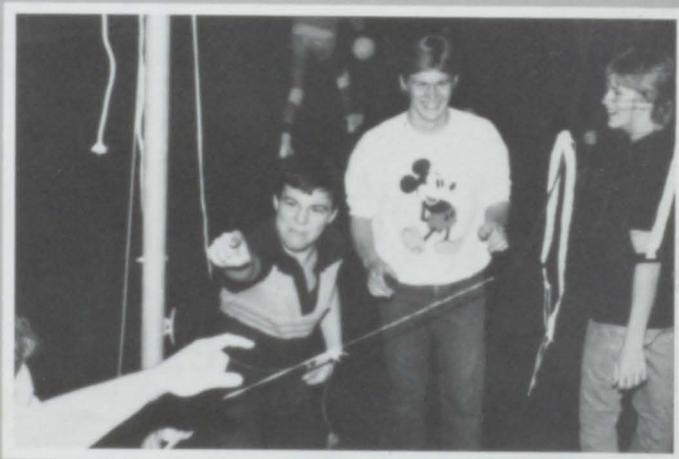

Jodi Homan pretends to be really interested in what is going on!

Everyone seems to be pointing fingers instead of putting up the volleyball net.

Tammy Adrian (or is it the Lone Ranger?) cheers the Bulldogs on in the girls District tournament.

Jennifer A. and Teresa A. give the camera a sly grin as they are caught in the act of doing the dreaded dishes!

The Year in Review

July 1, 1985-The continual threat of terrorism kept Americans at home. August 12, 1985-The AIDS epidemic continues to grow and spread fear. September 16, 1985-Miami Vice launches popularity of cool cops and hot fashions. November 18, 1985-President Reagan and Soviet leader Gorbachev meet in Geneva to bring the Superpowers closer together. December 16, 1985-After a 75-year voyage through the solar system, Halley's comet has again swung into view. February 10, 1986-The American Space Program suffers a major setback with the explosion of the Space Shuttle Challenger. April 21, 1986-U.S. bombers strike at Libya's author of terrorism, Dictator Muammar Gaddafi. May 12, 1986-The nuclear catastrophe at Chernobyl sets off global shock waves.

A Time Of Remembering

The Class of '86 Bids Farewell to HHS

Sunday, May 25, may have been cloudy outside, but inside the Hurley High School gym it was a bright day in the lives of 15 seniors. This was the day that they had waited so long and worked so hard for...graduation. Their chosen motto hung on the stage: "Special times, special places, special friends together. The moments pass so quickly, but the memories last forever." Wearing the colors of red and silver, the class of 1986 was escorted to the stage and were presented with a red rose. After an address by the President of Dakota State College, Dr. Richard J. Gowen, the seniors received their diplomas and tossed their caps into the air. As they stood in the reception line, tears were shed but the memories of HHS will always stay in the minds of the seniors of 1986.

Decisions That Count

Reporting the ideas of the students to the teachers is the main responsibility of the student council. Honored by being voted president of the student body were Jamie Boomgarden and Linda Peterson. The student council members have the responsibility of building the Homecoming scene in the gym and also judging the various window displays.

Deciding when to have school on wintry days is the opinion of our superintendent David Wrotenbery. Whatever happens in the district lies with the superintendent and sometimes those responsibilities appear to be overwhelming, but our superintendent successfully handles all the problems he encounters.

Being principal of the Hurley School is not an entirely easy job. It is his responsibility to create a class schedule which will make everyone happy.

Debating the issues of teacher salaries or the purchasing of new uniforms are some jobs faced by the school board. Their decisions are the final say on school issues. These five men put in many long nights in order to improve our school.

People with a "Touch of Class"

More Than Just Education

"I'm missing music sheets 3 and 4." "What song did you say?" "I can't believe we survived another concert week." You will hear these things and more if you walk by the music room where Marlys Bergjord is in charge of a group of singers of any age. Keeping music exciting and new, she even brought brass bells from her church to create the now famous bell choir.

Being a state FHA chaperone is a job Lavonne Meyer is growing accustomed to. She taught students everything from child development and cooking to making "loops."

Chapter questions, workbooks, study guides and tests can usually be associated with Kent Wolford.

When not in his room you can find him "pumping iron" or coaching any one of many teams in the art of shooting a basketball.

Brad Preheim wears many hats at Hurley High. Besides teaching the business and computer classes, you can usually find him taking pictures, keeping books, or supporting the students in some activity. Although he takes his teaching very seriously, he is especially known for his "wild and crazy" moments.

Bill Eichel only had one returning letterman on his basketball team this year. Hard work and a lot of basketball knowledge resulted in Mr. Eichel successfully building another good team.

Challenging the Mind

Yo hablo Espanol. That's "I speak Spanish". Learning Spanish was a new experience for the chicos and chicas (boys and girls). Their maestra (teacher) was Loretta Trenerry.

Sharing the English duties with Mrs. Trenerry is Karol Aeschlimann. Mrs. Aeschlimann spends most of her time trying to culture her students with the likes of Shakespeare, Poe, and Hemmingway.

Karen Bossman keeps busy teaching the math subjects in Hurley High. From working math problems to making quilts, Miss Bossman's class is fun. She also keeps busy building the still new volleyball program.

No one knows their craft better than Tom Christiansen. Many students benefit from his knowledge of auto mechanics, wood and metal working and other industrial arts. You can always count on a smile from Mr. Christiansen to brighten your day.

Ruth Williams spent four days a week building the band program. Although getting the high school students to take lessons was a chore for her, it paid off as she steadily improved the band.

Who's more puzzling than a rubic's cube, faster than lightning and crazier than a bowl of mixed nuts? If you say Alan Ward, you were probably in his physics class. His extra time and effort spent working with students to make this hard subject more understandable was greatly appreciated.

Also in the science department was Terry Winegar who taught us about the body parts and how they functioned as one. His diagrams and open discussions of his personal experiences made his class unique, to say the least.

Are bean prices up or down? Why are there so many farm foreclosures? Carrying around these answers is the ag teacher, Gene Stapleton.

Helping Hands

Becoming a second mother to the kindergarten children was Diane DeGroot, who made leaving home okay with a winning smile. Besides the ABC's and 123's, she taught them how to act and behave in school.

Teaching first graders how to read may be trying on the patience, but Jean Lounsbury prepared them for the next year.

"Experience is the best teacher" thinks Kelly Preheim. Mrs. Preheim made learning fun for the second graders with many exciting activities.

Teaching third graders the multiplication tables is difficult, but deciphering the squiggly lines made by students who are learning cursive writing is next to impossible for anyone but their teacher, Beverly Spomer.

Trying to get one ten-year old to behave, listen, and learn is a difficult task. Connie McGinnis successfully accomplished this with 16 fourth graders.

The fifth grade class is under the instruction of Jan Tiede. In addition, Miss Tiede guided the students in writing and performing their own class play.

The move upstairs for the sixth graders was made easier by their two instructors, Steve Janssen and Gayle Halverson. Mrs. Halverson also acts as the school's Chapter I instructor. When Mr. Janssen is not in charge of the sixth grade, he is in the gym running the physical education classes.

The special education teacher this year was Linda Fansin.

Liz Slack was anything but slack as the new speech therapist.

Elementary teachers help their students in many different ways. Mrs. Preheim is busy getting Eric ready for the concert.

Getting Us There in Style

Who does all of those little things that nobody really notices and basically takes for granted? Those odd jobs done everyday were accomplished by business managers, janitors, cooks and bus drivers.

Betty Eidem, the bringer of urgent messages, healer of wounds, fixer of torn articles, and reminder of unpaid bills, always gets a full day in. Add to this balancing the budget, secretarial work, paying the bills, and the giving of good advice and you will find that Betty is what makes this school tick.

There's a man in our school who can fix, replace, repair and carry four desks at one time! It's Larry Ness! As the school's head janitor, Larry is depended upon for many things. Under him as helpers are his wife Judy and his son James.

Darlene Schissel and Thelma Mikkelsen were here everyday to make sure the kids were not running around with growling stomachs. They kept on making the things kids like, and took some chances on making something new. But for all the grief they received from rowdy high schoolers, Darlene and Thelma just kept on cookin'!

If you have ever walked into the cafe and saw men with cotton in their ears, their hair standing on end, and drinking coffee like it's going out of style, then you know you've met the Hurley bus drivers. These dedicated souls drive the buses in every kind of weather and brought kids safely to school and back home every day.

You Ain't Seen Nothin' Yet

Paula Georgeson on parade.

What's a party? Ask the Juniors. Between the homework and their sports curriculum, that's what you would find them doing. Saturday, a movie. Sunday, relaxation and recovery. Then Monday—Back to school.

The juniors are into the groove of Hurley High. Veterans you might say. Many have experience with the varsity athletic teams. Some contributed to the list of names on the honor roll. But when you say juniors, you think of Prom. A week of work for putting on one very large and popular party. Then Monday—Back to school.

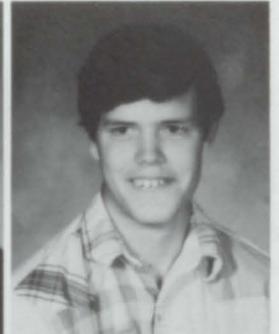

Homecoming was another fun-filled week of parties. Every night they could they would build float. The junior class entry received a respectful but disappointing second place. Friday was the big day.

First the parade, then the game.

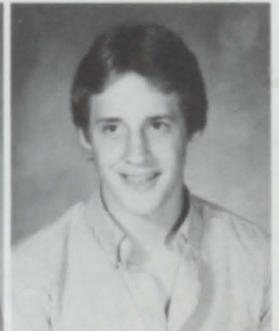

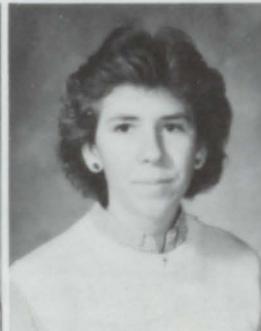

That night there was another party, the homecoming dance. Everyone had fun. Then Monday—Back to school. Of those who had the rare opportunity of being a student in the famous Mr. Ward's physics class, most were happy to engage in a rap session with the smartest physics buff. Physics was only one of the elective "whoppers" the juniors had the chance to take. Spanish threw a curve ball at them also. Many Sunday nights were spent doing homework for these two subjects. Then Monday—Back to school.

Most enjoyed their chance at eleventh grade and made a year of it. But just ask any junior: You ain't seen nothin' yet!

Sophomores

Just "P"-lain Crazy

If you could describe a typical sophomore at Hurley High in one word, what would it be? It would undoubtedly be "P"-crazy! P is for Pee Wee Herman, Porsches, pets, and patrolman. Not one day would go by without hearing a line from Pee Wee's Big Adventure or from his HBO special. Other sophomores spoke of their dreams of owning a Porsche. Some sophomores decided to take a field trip during school to the "Boomgarden Ranch" in the famed "Monte", only to find that it is okay to try and skip school, but not to try and outrun a patrolman doing it. The sophomores tried their hand at making a quilt in geometry and also making passes at the freshman girls.

Some of their time was devoted to taking care of various pets. One was a Venus fly-trap in Biology.

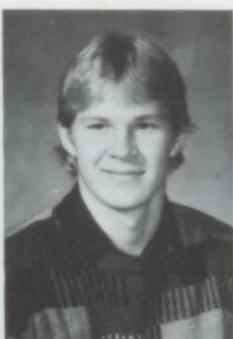

The other was "Kiwi" Herman, a fruit turned man's best friend. The sophomores added a new entrant in the homecoming float competition, composed of a "Monte", a string of cans and a roll of streamers.

Creating havoc seemed to be the sophomore's department, especially when playing follow the leader in the halls or mysteriously misplacing every one of their biology books before biology class. They left Hurley High wondering what can possibly come next?

Lockers Become Second Home

Aren't the orange lockers in the locker rooms used for gymshorts and t-shirts? Study halls? Aren't you supposed to study during that time? And how about lunch hour? Isn't it bad manners to sing while you eat?

The freshmen learned the answers to these questions and many more when they entered the good times of Hurley High. While not all found themselves up to their necks in gymshorts or staring through an orange barrier, all did entertain the rest of the high school by proving their school spirit with their version of the school song. As for study halls, forget it! As far as they were concerned, studying was not listed among things to do. You never saw a freshman leave the building without at least one book in hand, (and of course, they blamed the teachers for piling on all the work).

While not in school the freshmen, most of them acquiring a driver's license sometime during the year, spent a lot of time and money on gas driving around giving other motorists gray hairs.

After the year was through and summer rolled around, the freshmen would have to admit the year was a good one, and that next year's group would receive no kinder treatment. At least not from a bunch of 'been there' sophomores!

Nicknames, Nickels, and Numchucks

"Hype", "Bungy", "Mama Teresa" and "Tames", might be foreign language to most people but not to the group called the eighth graders. They made up nicknames for almost everyone in their class.

Not only were the eighth graders known for pinning names on people, but money played a major role in their lives. It was said that $10 was given for the dare of eating one live worm! Many other dares were given and bets placed. Learning the art of self-defense aroused the curiosity of one eighth grader but, when a set of numchucks came into the school and into Mr. Plahn's possession, it was decided that the martial arts should be practiced elsewhere.

As the year ended some were known by a nickname while others walked away with money in their pockets and a smile on their face.

Taking Junior High By Storm

If you ever see a large group of students gathered around Russ Anderson, they're not there just for idle gossip, but rather to see what Russel brought to school this time! If you could hear some phrases that come out of a typical seventh grader's mouth, it might be "Cubs all the way" or "I get no respect!" A friend was made with the school janitor whose trash-can-spinning abilities will always astound them. This unique bunch is known for boggling the mind of even the smartest teacher!

Fifth and Sixth Grade

Drawing On Resources

Have you ever wanted to be a famous painter or actor? The fifth grade class got an early start as they drew life-size pictures and wrote biographies on famous people. They also practiced acting and writing skills as they wrote and acted out their own plays. Participating in these activities made the year a memorable one for all.

The sixth grade class seemed to want to grow up to be painters or historians. They concentrated on painting and studying South Dakota history. They also enriched their understanding of art by visiting the Pettigrew Museum. The year ended on a note of anticipation as the sixth graders looked forward to becoming part of the junior high.

Third and Fourth Grade

Expressing Creativity

Do you remember when you were in the third grade? Remember learning how to write and learning your multiplication tables? I'm sure the third graders won't forget! How could you forget all the good times third grade brings? Working with computers and singing at the Viborg Nursing Home not only highlighted their year, but brightened the faces of people around them.

Reading is something that can be enjoyed by everyone, especially when the books being read were by Laura Ingalls Wilder. The fourth graders also learned more about the world around them. The Picassos improved their artistic skills by creating pictures from the information they retained from watching educational T.V. programs. What else will we see the fourth graders doing in the future?

Primary Grades

Primary Teachers Make Learning Fun

The first year of school was one of excitement for the kindergarteners this year. After the shock of leaving home for the first time the students found learning to be fun and exciting. They learned about many different types of animals. They found out that the penguin can't fly, and the polar bear can grow to be eight feet long! One of the hardest accomplishments was being taught how to sit still and pay attention in class.

Learning how to read and enjoying their new library books were exciting adventures for the first graders. Besides the three "R"s, puppets were used in teaching life skills. Buford, the big-eared mouse, taught them classroom manners. Duso, the dolphin, taught them how to get along with others. Foodell, the elephant, also had something to teach them--how to eat the right foods.

The second grade class was filled with excitement. Although there were only 13 in the class, they made the year worthwhile. The classe's favorite subject was unanimously named art! They learned how to draw and they even made their own pet rocks! They also had an extra classmate, "Skooter" the hamster, who was enjoyed by all. One of the highlights of the year was writing letters to school children in China. They learned that despite the different customs and traditions, children throughout the world are the same.

Dressing like Pilgrims makes the Thanksgiving meal even better.

Workin' Hard? ... Guilty!

Despite all of the extra-curricular activities participated in at HHS, school is still mostly classes and homework. Look in any locker and through the mess you will see notebooks full of problems and lecture notes. At the bottom of the pile are the dreaded reference cards which every English teacher insists on. Every so often a terrible smell creeps out from the science room to the halls. It may be formaldehyde from dissecting or it could be that well-dressed genius instructor from Viborg leading a class experiment in roton-egg gas! A much better aroma can be found outside the home ec room where both boys and girls are cooking up a storm!

It is not uncommon to see accounting students using about four desks for their practice sets or a couple of girls in auto class chasing a car with the oil plug in their hands!

The year was spiced up a bit by making a quilt which made $200 for the sophomores. A trial was held in business law in which, after much deliberation, the jury found the accused guilty.

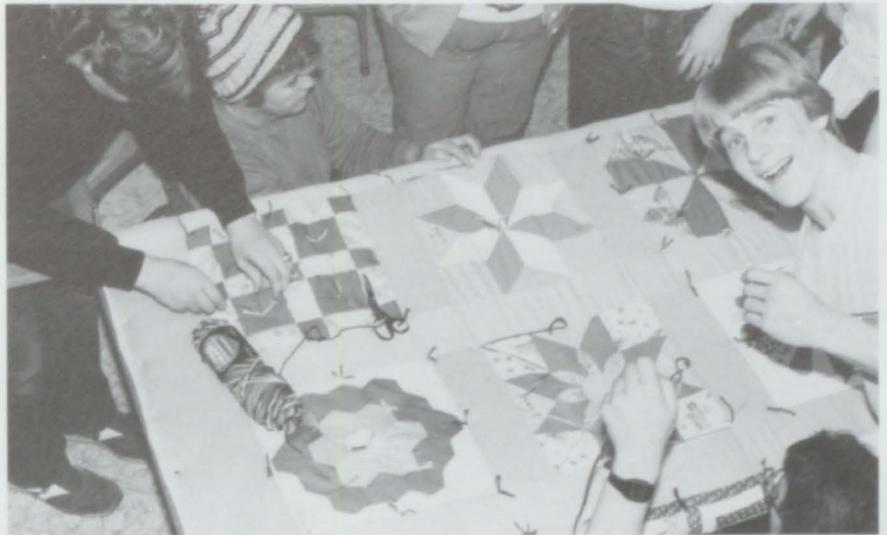

Although the work was often tedious, nearly impossible, and frustrating at times, it paid off as everyone was much wiser and ready to move on to next years' classes.

Eric points an accusing finger while Judge Jamie looks on. His sister Suzanne was found guilty in the infamous "Kiwi Murder Trial."

Mark asks the advice of Raye and Loren about a complex computer problem.

The sophomore class puts the finishing touches on the quilt they made in geometry.

Laurie Heirigs hauls the day's assignments to the bus.

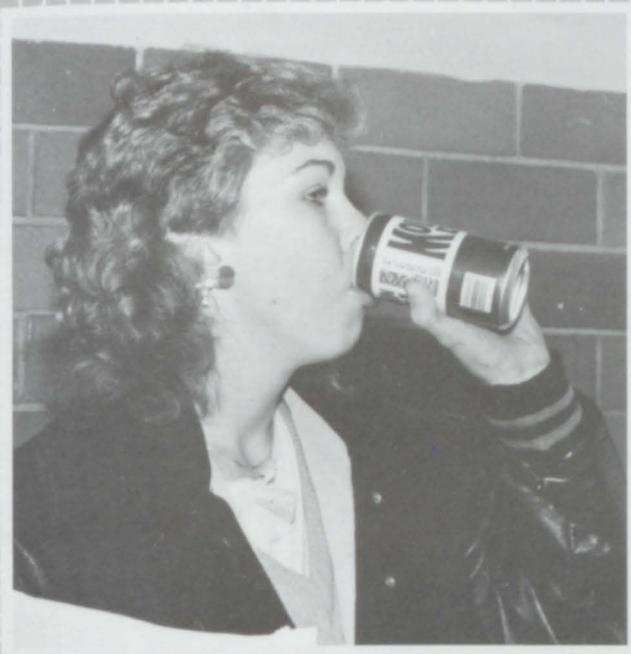

Aaron Gerdes converts his gym bag into a second locker.

Mike is teaching Jamie and Paul a native Eskimo language.

What's "In"

Fashion

As the fashion craze hit Hurley High, the students were not about to be left out of the many new and fun styles. The "Don Johnson look" (Jamie Boomgarden-top right) gained popularity with the Miami Vice TV show. A new look in traditional blue jeans was flower designs (Kris Lange, Renae Duxbury, Dorothy Kluckman, Stacy Reiners, Jodi Homan-middle left). Flowers seemed to be a hit in pants, shorts, and shirts, too (Joddie Poppenga-far top right; Hope Johnson and Jackie Georgeson-far bottom right). The coats changed from short to long, and were decorated with LOTS of pins and buttons, (Suzanne Petersen and Tammy Adrian-top left) as the trench coat came back into style. Guys' shorts also took on a longer length (Donovan Hansen-bottom right) as "burmuda's" and "yams" came into the fashion scene. Hawaiian prints also made a big hit (Kristin Aeschli-mann and Chad Boomgarden-bottom left) in anything from shirts to shoes to shorts.

Hurkota Days 85-86

Coronation Holds Memories

Valerie Parmeley and Brad Farrar were chosen as this year's small fry. They presented the king and queen with flowers and the cane.

The stage shone in colors of bright red, pink, and white as the music began to play. The candidates, led by the junior escorts, walked up the aisle, marking the beginning of coronation night. Each of the candidates was introduced by the ladies of the court. The audience was told of their accomplishments and activities throughout high school. To add to the evening, the chorus, under the direction of Marlys Bergjord, sang "You're The Inspiration". The highlight of the evening was the crowning of the 1985-1986 Homecoming Royalty, Steph Lange and Jamie Boomgarden. After the ceremony, a pep rally was held in the gymnasium to get everyone fired up for the Friday night football game against the Centerville Tornadoes. Introductions of teams were given by the coaches, and class skits were performed. After the spirit stick was given and the school song was played, everyone headed outdoors to see the "H" go up in flames. The new king queen were given torches and the cheerleaders and crowd cheered as the traditional burning of the "H" began. As the "H" fell down, emitting a shower of sparks, everyone left fired up and ready for the big day ahead.

Chosen out of their classes to be Ladies of the Court were: Jody Kaarup, Jackie Georgeson, Jodi Homan, and Kathy Jorgensen.

Junior Escorts for 1985-86 were: Hope Johnson, Rod Anderson, Dorothy Kluckman, and Donovan Hansen.

Homecoming Week Fires Up Students

Why is everyone dressed up like nerds? Well, of course, it's Homecoming Week 1985-86! Everyone came to school, and even went to basketball games dressed as punk rockers, bums, your basic nerd, and in togas.

The student council chose the theme 'candy' for this year's floats and store windows. It would be next to impossible to build Homecoming floats without some problems. Time to build was a major problem the students faced. When the lack of time was overcome, quality floats were produced to be entered in the Hurkota Days parade. As the tradition of building the "H" went on, the ambitious H-Club added a little more fun to the construction this year, as a few spunky members had an oil fight. With all the oil on the ground, Texaco could drill and make millions in profit!

After the football game the high school students did a variety of things. Some strutted their stuff at the Homecoming dance, while others took to the road and headed to Sioux Falls for a late night snack at Pizza Hut. Heading home with full stomachs after a very full week, the students of HHS agreed that they would not soon forget Hurkota Days 85-86!

Decked out in toga attire, Chad gives the camera a sheepish grin. What is he up to now?!

Tim Spomer (alias Gilbert the Nerd) shows everyone where he plans to sell his new line of clothing...around the world!

Tim Spomer, unaware of Jamie lurking behind him, pours oil on the "H" as everyone else has a good time pouring it on each other!

King Jamie Boomgarden and Queen Steph Lange stop and chat with emcee Mr. Preheim as they cruise down Main Street during the parade.

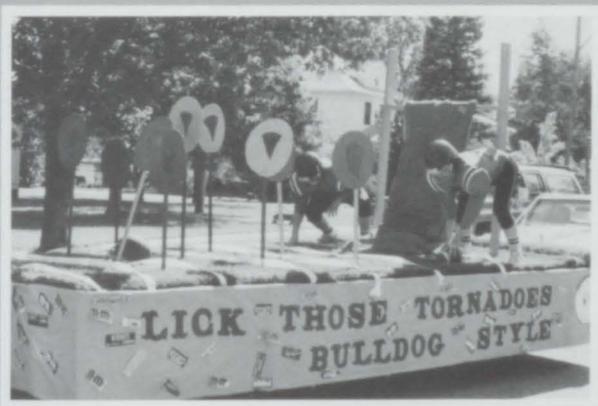

Renae and Sharon work diligently trying to get the chicken wire to do what they want.

"Let's Go On A Scoring Spree" won the sophomores a first place on their float in the upper division.

Some of the seniors show off their new wardrobes. What is the fashion world coming to?!

The Eighth graders took first place in their division with "Lick Those Tornadoes Bulldog Style".

The Hurley High School band proudly marches down Main during the annual Hurkota Days parade.

Everyone gets down to the sound of JEM music.

Stacy doesn't appear to be very pleased with the camera!

Evidently these people would rather play cards than dance!

Sweetheart Ball Leaves Memories

The new Sweetheart Royalty, Randy Weier and Tammy Adrian, dance to the theme song.

After many hours of hard work, the FHA was ready to hold Hurley's Sweetheart Ball. Helium balloons added a special touch to the gym, as did the flashing lights around the punchbowl and the door.

The highlight of the evening was the crowning of the new Sweetheart royalty, Randy Weier and Tammy Adrian. The new royalty danced in the soft candlelight to the chosen theme, "In The Air Tonight". Some students danced the night away to the sound of JEM Music, while others found an interesting card game going on.

Donovan and Sue appear to be enjoying themselves!

One Memorable Night Of "Heaven"

Plugging in curling irons, shaving, checking dresses and tuxedos, pinning on corsages, posing for pictures...this is what prom night is all about. It is a formal evening that doesn't end until the rest of the world is getting up in the morning. For one night, the seniors and juniors put aside thoughts of the future and cling to the past. This year's theme was inspired by Bryan Adams' song, "Heaven". The setting for the cherished prom was shades of blue with a beautiful balloon arch standing tall at one end. The speaker for the banquet, former teacher and coach Dean Christensen, told students to value the friendships they have. The band IMAGE started to play at 8:30, and the action didn't stop. After the dance, many went to Sioux Falls to bowl into the early morning hours and eat breakfast at Embers. To end the evening, there were many pleasant memories which will never be forgotten. And for some, the evening of "Heaven" may have been wished to go on forever.

Tim gets down with his dancing shades on as Dot looks at the cute guys in the band.

Tim thinks he is definitely in Heaven, surrounded by all of the junior girls.

Raye soars through the air as IMAGE plays the song "Jump". Don't take things so seriously, Raye!

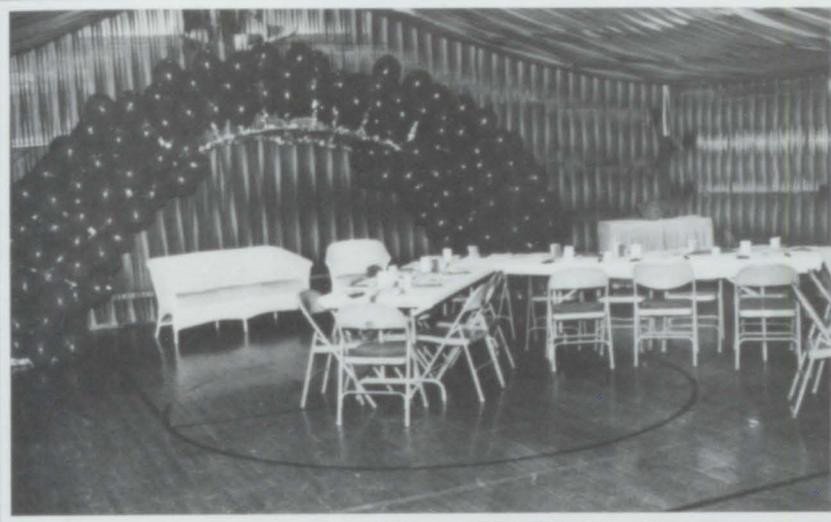

A beautiful starlit sky was the setting for the head table at the banquet.

The juniors and seniors take time out to enjoy the delicious catered meal.

The junior's week of hard work paid off as the gym looked spectacular, with the balloon arch as the main attraction.

Former teacher Dean "Coach" Christensen gave a speech on the value of meaningful friendships.

Hard Work Pays Off

For the first time in many years, the Hurley High School presented an all-school musical. The production was entitled "Tumbleweeds" and was about a slow-moving cowpoke of that name, and his horse Epic, returning to Grimy Gulch to make it a better place to live. His progress was slowed when three villains: Throckmorten Fleesum, Clementine Greedy and Snake Eye McFoul, persuaded the Poohawk Indians to raid the town, riding it of all its people so the choo-choo Railway could lay tracks there. Their tactic failed, and the villains were discovered and kidnapped by the Poohawks when they made peace with the citizens of Grimy Gulch.

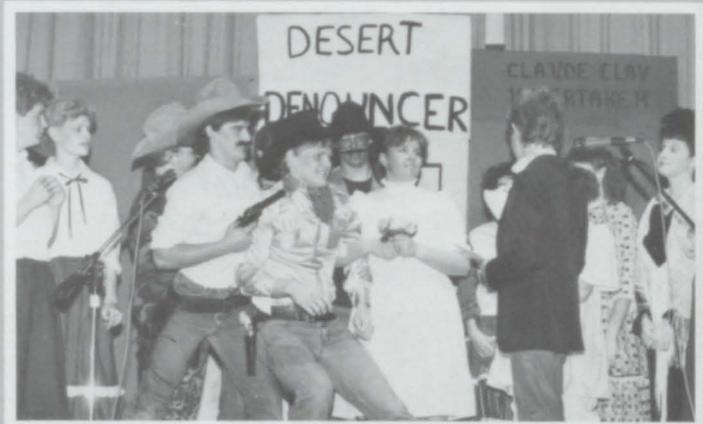

The story climaxed when a shootout took place between Snake Eye and Tumbleweeds. The hero shot off Snake Eye's fingernail. Hildegard Hamhockers plan which involved forging a letter to get Tumbleweeds to marry her, was foiled when Miss Prudence Lovely (she taught Tumbleweeds to read and write) discovered the letter was a fake, and forced Hildegard to admit she was wrong. The play ended on a happy note with everyone getting just what they wanted. (Except the villains of course. They're out in Poohawk country learning to make beads and blankets!)

Sports

“Against the Wall”

Steph shoots it over the defenders outstretched arms.

“Against the wall!” Those dreaded words rang across the gym and reached the ears of every girl. All action ceased and the group shuffled to the south wall of the gym. Sprints. This was the price the girls questioned.

As each of them strided across the gym, she thought only of the forth-coming battle. On the second and third trips to the opposite end and back, the girls pushed themselves, thinking of the mistakes made and how to improve them in the next game.

After numerous trips up and down the court floor, legs beg for a rest, sides ache, and sweat rolls into mascara smeared eyes, making vision almost impossible. “This is the last one. Push yourselves!” is called out. One last thought races through their tired minds, “Is it really worth it?”

Attitude, the biggest factor of a good basketball team lies there. The girls of Hurley entered their season with a soaring attitude. Chosen to lead the young team were the only seniors, Stephanie Lange and Queena Lamb. Game after game, the attitude of the determined ball players still proved strong.

The season ended 9-14 for the team, but every girl held her head high, for the losses were always hard fought battles. And the wins . . . ooh, the sweet sound of a roaring crowd, the final buzzer, and the scoreboard silently stating who rose triumphant in the game. Those are the times never forgotten, for the memories they hold say to each and every team member, “Yes, it was worth it!”

A Light In The Future

With only one returning senior, the Bulldogs showed the conference a definitely younger look this year. Coaches Terry Winegar and Don Plahn tried many new offenses and defenses looking for success but the team was too young and too small. Although their record of 0-8 doesn't show it, a number of the games were close with many being decided in the fourth quarter. The future holds promise as many players gained much experience and are looking forward to a much better season next year.

The Bulldogs were led by senior co-captain Loren Roth and junior co-captain Donovan Hansen. Loren Roth received the Most Valuable Player award for his outstanding play. Loren also received All-Conference honors. Howard Georgeson led the offense at the quarterback position most of the year and received All-Conference Honorable Mention honors. Sophomore running-back/linebacker Paul Rayburn was given the Most Courageous Award by Coach Winegar and Duane Falconer was awarded for being the Most Improved Player. With 11 returning lettermen for the 1986 campaign, the Bulldogs future on the football field certainly looks bright.

BOYS MAKE MOST OF SEASON

Boomgarden Lifts Bulldogs

Everyone in the gymnasium knew it would come down to Jamie Boomgarden. Trailing the whole game, the Bulldogs had gained their first lead with only 22 seconds left in the ballgame. Four seconds, a foul, and two Warrior free throws later, the Bulldogs were again down a point. Even though Coach Bill Eichel knew Wakonda would key on Boomgarden, he knew he had to go to his "money man." During the time out a "clear out" was designed to give Jamie a one-on-one situation on the baseline. With only seconds separating the Bulldogs from a loss and a mediocre finish or a victory and a third place finish in the district tournament, the ball was in Boomgarden's hands. However, the Wakonda defender cut off the baseline and Boomgarden was forced to move away from the basket. With the clock winding down the 6'3" senior calmly spun in the air and banked a 12-footer off the glass giving the Bulldogs their best finish in district play in seven years. The basket gave Boomgarden his 24th and 25th points of the night. It was a fitting conclusion to a fine career.

Jamie had a banner year. In addition to scoring 390 points, he pulled down 275 rebounds, blocked 125 shots, and did all this while only being whistled for 49 fouls. But Jamie was not alone in the effort. Four seniors provided leadership both in practice and in games. Good play by senior Mike Smith, who averaged close to five assists a game in the second half of the season, provided help at the guard spot. Underclassmen showed great promise for the future as well. Junior Donovan Hansen and Rod Anderson provided offensive power throughout the year. All in all, eleven ball players saw considerable playing time during the season.

In a year where the Bulldogs had only one returning letterman, many had predicted a dismal year. Coaches Bill Eichel and Kent Wolford never stopped believing in the boys, and eventually this confidence spread to the players. The boys proved to themselves that despite losses due to graduation and from students moving to other schools, they are capable of beating the odds and putting together a fine season. The absence of the seniors will be felt, but the future of the Hurley Bulldogs looks bright.

Spike it!

"Come on girls!" "If you ever want to spike the ball you have to get your bumps up!" Do these words sound familiar to you? If they do, you either played volleyball, watched a game, or were within hearing distance of a volleyball practice! These were the words of advice that Coach Bossman most often chose to tell her team!

Bump. Set. Spike. Three very little words that are extremely important in the game of volleyball. The girls entered the season with only one year of volleyball experience, but they were determined to make themselves part of a better volleyball team.

Led by four seniors, the volleyball team had plenty of leadership. Most of the girls had played volleyball in its first year, and had become used to its different rules. Through many hours of hard work in practice the girls learned the three basic terms: bump, set, and spike.

Although their record of 3-11 doesn't really show the improvement of the girls, many of the matches at the end of the season were close.

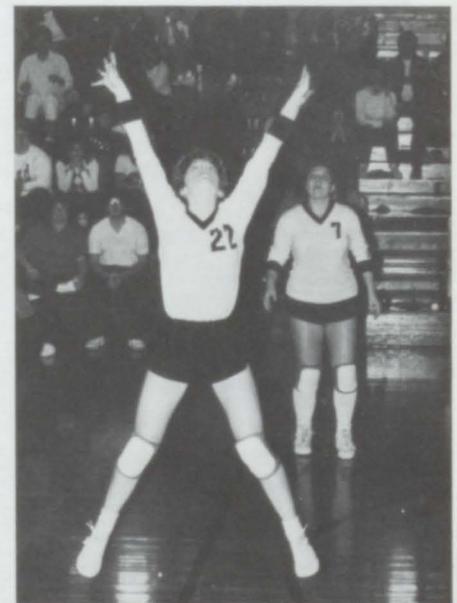

The Bulldogs placed fourth at the region tournament, and third in the tournament that they hosted. All in all, with Hurley's young talent, the future of volleyball looks bright!

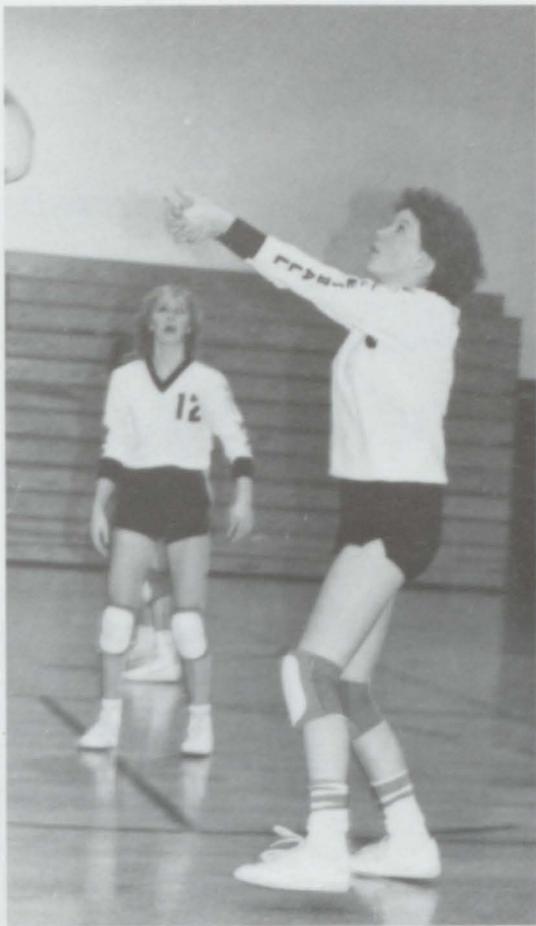

Jill concentrates on making the perfect bump.

On The Right Track

Seven Head For State Meet

During the last months of school, track takes up a large part of many students' schedules. If it wasn't practices, there were plenty of meets to attend. Track is considered an individual sport, but it can also be a team sport if you are part of a relay team. This year individual and team effort was used to make the most of the season.

Suzanne Petersen, Jodi Homan, Jill Oltmanns, Steph Petersen, Jamie Boomgarden, Tim Spomer and Howard Georgeson attended the State Track Meet. The Hurley tracksters did well and scored numerous points at most of the meets. Both teams attended the Dan Lennon Invitational Meet at the Dakota Dome in Vermillion. This was a very competitive meet, with over 60 schools from four states in attendance. Despite the fierce competition, the relay teams placed fairly high. The girls also attended the Howard Wood Relays in Sioux Falls.

School records were also broken. Jody Kaarup broke the school's mile record, and Jodi Homan broke the old 300 meter hurdles record. The girls 800 meter relay team received a trophy, and made it to the State Meet. The girls team won the Irene Invitational Track Meet.

Earlier in the year, Jody Kaarup took all the cross country meets by storm, placing high in every one. Jody finished up the season by placing tenth at the State Cross Country Meet in Huron.

So whether it was striving for the finish, edging over the last hurdle, or leaping just a little bit farther into the pit, the Hurley tracksters' hard work paid off.

Tim keeps on pushing as he starts his 6th (or is it his 7th?) lap of the two-mile run.

Linda P. and Hope J., Front row; Kyle W., Tim K., Loren R., Paul R., Rick H., Tim L., Duane F.

Queenena looks relieved as she nears the finish line.

Jamie comes across in first place in the 100 meter dash. He earned a sixth place finish at the State Meet in the 400 meter dash.

Leaping into the pit, Howard hopes to place high in the triple jump. He received fifth place at the State Meet in this event.

Jodi Homan flies over another hurdle as she runs the 300m hurdles. Jodi broke the school record in this event.

Tim flies over the bar with the greatest of ease! Tim also participated in the State Meet.

Steph and Jill stretch out and get psyched up to run the medley relay.

Young Athletes Excel

The junior high athletic program at Hurley really took off this year. The girls 5th-8th grade teams under Coach Karen Bossman, had a fine year as their record shows. They had a combined record of 16-5. The boys basketball team suffered several close losses at the end of the year and ended up with a record of 4-5. A number of girls and boys participated in track. According to their coaches, "they have an excellent future!"

Making Everyone Smile!

If people think that cheerleading is an easy way to earn an "H" they are very wrong. Cheerleaders are faced with many responsibilities. It is their duty to see that the teams get the support they need to bring home another victory and the support they need when they don't. They also saw to it that there were plenty of pep rallies to fire up the fans.

To accomplish such feats the cheerleaders spent many spare hours practicing. The cheerleaders also attended the University of South Dakota Cheerleading Clinic.

The cheerleaders saw their hard work pay off as enthusiasm ran rampant at every game.

The girls basketball cheerleaders were: Wendy Andersen, Paula Georgeson, Jodie Poppenga, Renae Duxbury (top).

Noteworthy!

What is that beeping and honking coming from the band room? It must be the Hurley band practicing diligently for their new director, Mrs. Ruth Williams.

The band braved the heat and wind to march in two parades in one day: Viborg's and Irene's. Even though the heat was intense, the band made it a thoroughly enjoyable afternoon stopping for ice cream on the way home. The band also performed for Hurley's Hurkota Days and for graduation.

A selected group of band members played in the orchestra at the All School Musical. The entire band also put on a Spring Concert. All in all, it was a good year for the Hurley band.

Chad Ness has to blow a lot of air through that horn!

Music Makers

Chorus is always fun, and this year was no exception! The chorus did the usual things like singing for Homecoming, graduation and at contest, but they also tried some definitely new ideas!

For the first time ever, the Hurley chorus performed a musical; "Tumbleweeds." The girls also performed in a bell choir at the Christmas concert. This was something that no one had done before, and it took the girls a little while to catch on! But when they did, everyone who saw them was impressed!

Many of the singers took part in a chorus festival with students from other schools. Mrs. Bergjord was proud of their fine showing and has high hopes for the future!

Rod A., Shawn B., Queena L., and Loren R., were selected as Hurley's All State Chorus representatives.

Linda P., Sheila W., Jody K., Sue P., and Jackie G. look very intent on committing no errors in the bell choir.

Just a Swingin'!

Who are those people? What school are they from? These were just two of the many comments people had when they first saw Hurley's swing choir dressed in their bag lady outfits!

Both the swing choir and jazz band attended contests in Vermillion and Norfolk, Neb. Neither the jazz band nor the swing choir fared very well in Vermillion but when they got to Norfolk they were ready for the competition. The jazz band received a III+ rating and many valuable comments from the judges. The swing choir received a trophy for attaining a 1 rating and an even bigger trophy for placing 3rd overall. Since there were over 20 schools competing, this was a fine showing.

The swing choir finished the year by performing at Senior Night for some very amused parents. The jazz band ended the year by giving a concert that was distinctly Hawaiian!

Paul R., Howard G., and Loren R. are intent on making their notes perfect.

Promising Musicians

Under the direction of Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Bergjord, the junior high musicians had a very interesting year.

Both the B and C bands performed at the Christmas and Spring concerts, and most of the students performed solos at contest.

A number of people in the 7-8th grade chorus attended a music festival in Parker. They performed numerous musical selections with other junior high students and music directors. The 5-6th graders performed the musical-play Pinocchio and the 7-8th graders sang many songs at the spring concert.

Keeping 'Em Informed

"If you're not willing to go out and sell ads and meet your deadlines, we just won't have an annual." The year-book staff heard this threat from advisor Brad Preheim many times during the year, and it always seemed to help get everyone fired up. With a bunch of new ideas and deadlines to meet, this years group of staffers had a fun time putting out a book that everyone would enjoy. They also took a trip to Piccadilly Circus in Sioux Falls to celebrate what turned out to be a prosperous year.

The paper staff had many talented journalists on staff this year. They kept the public informed about what goes on in the Hurley High School. They kept up on the latest sports happenings, grade news, and wrote editorials on special events.

Clubs Make Most of Year

Enthusiasm! Just what every club needs. The clubs in Hurley had plenty of it this year.

The FHA was busy this year with putting on Sweet-heart Ball. The club also had a lunch stand for Rally Day.

The cheerleaders and the Pep Club really supported the athletic teams this year. Using their enthusiasm, they got everyone fired up!

The H-Club put on the 4th annual athletic banquet and the library aids were invaluable to Mrs. Trenerry.

Here's to Us

There it is. The news and newsmakers of 1985-86. As a staff, we are proud of what we've done. How successful we were at covering the year will be ultimately determined by the readers. We tried our best to be fair and objective in our coverage. We are not the largest staff, not the smartest, and certainly are not good at making our deadlines, but we are a group of 16 individuals who give up many free hours to create a book which Hurley can be proud of.

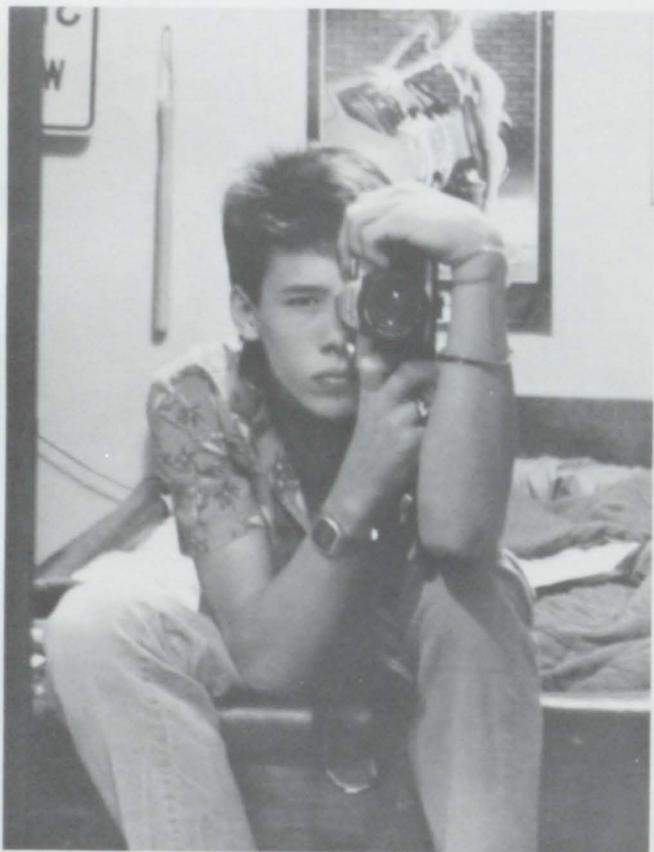

We would also like to take time to thank all who supported us financially. The cost of having a book made in such a small quantity is quite great, and the majority of this money comes from people willing to buy advertising in our book. Their help allows us to maintain high quality and to sell the yearbook at one-third of our cost.

We hope you enjoyed this edition of the "Hurkota," because we enjoyed bringing the news to you.
